Mrs. Flora Williams.

The above is a likeness of the most prominent exponent of song in the city of Wheeling.

Mrs. Williams, who traces her ancestry into that "sea of song," Wales, was born on Wheeling Island, now the Seventh ward of this city. When yet a young child, her parents removed to Martin's Ferry, Ohio, where she sang her way into the hearts of the people, who naturally yet take pride in claiming her. Her voice early attracted attention, and its care and cultivation were nurtured and encouraged, the best teachers of voice this city afforded being secured. Later on vocal study was taken up with Mrs. H. Clarence Eddy, (Mrs. Sara B. Hershey), of Chicago, Mr. William Courtney and Madame Marie-Cecile of New York City, all eminent vocalists, and their training is reflected. Miss Flora Williams, as she was known here, to teachers and music lovers, married Mr. Walter Williams, of this city, as a musician, who has been invaluable. She is also soprano and director of the First Presbyterian church quartette, and can claim the commanding position of Musical Wheeling's active women.

The foregoing brilliant photograph and voice in touch, will allow dwelling a moment on one of the newest things in science—the photography of the human voice, or, more properly, the photographing of all sounds, including that of music. Dr. J. Mount Bleyer, of New York City, is the discoverer. He was assisted by K. L. Dickson—at one time photographic expert at Thomas A. Edison's laboratory. This invention will without doubt find a field in medicine and other sciences, still it is yet undetermined of how much practical use. By the way, Musical "wheeling" (those without the charmed circle, notwithstanding), has proven itself of practical use, when last week, it tried to help the city do its duty, and that it is not "Time elaborately thrown away."

This afternoon, the Woman's Musical Club holds its usual weekly rehearsal and Mr. Elster has a counter attraction, "Wang." This really funny opera will have two presentations to-day.

There will be some good church music to-morrow, but no Opera House orchestra rehearsal, the season having ended with decided marks of approval from both "mass and class," and now that they are ended there will be a genuine feeling of loss.

One of these, the Philharmonic Quartette concert, comes off next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the A. O. U. W. hall, German Bank building, entrance on Market street. An elevator in the building makes this hall just the proper one for this class of entertainment. This month, however, in becoming older, will improve, musically, four concerts being yet in its confines.

fore the evening of instrumental interpretation, and as many do, read the lives of the programmed composers. And just here, with regret, it must be mentioned that no more will the musical world speak of Johannes Brahms as the greatest living musical composer. The great composer died in Vienna, last Saturday. From the Musical Courier's well-written life of the man, is culled the following:

"The death of Johannes Brahms removes from the sparsely settled land of music the last of the immortals, the one whom Brahms justly ranked with one whom Schumann lavished both praise and prophecy. Not by any wrench of the imagination can we conjure the name of Antonin Dvorak. Despite his delightful gift of saying naive and simple things, not by any excess of sentiment can we do over Italy's grand old man, Verdi, with its title, nor yet France's favorite son, Saint-Saens; not any one, nor all of these three varying talents can be compared to the great, virile man who died last Saturday in Vienna, the city of his preference, but not of his birth.

The coming week, with the exception of Tuesday night, will be devoted to rehearsals, first in importance being those for Easter services. The splendid music arranged for this day at St. Matthew's church, is printed here:

As usual the high character of work expected will be forthcoming. It goes without saying that Easter Sunday will find many from all congregations at both the 6:30 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. devotions. The other rehearsals will be "St. Paul," by the Oratorio society, which is progressing, and the "Flying Dutchman" spinning chorus" is well under way, through careful study of the Woman's Choral club, which club has again changed its day of meeting. Hereafter it will be Tuesday afternoon of each week, at 3:30 o'clock, in the choir room of St. Matthew's church. The first change was made because of the meeting on that day, at the same time and place, of a church sewing guild.

How singing, and sewing and church can get mingled, the following little thing, coming to the actual notice of the writer, will prove: A little girl was sent to get a Hymnal. The clerk, in giving it, asked, "Who is the singer at your house, your father or mother?" "Oh, neither of them," came the innocent reply, "but our machine is a singer."

THAT "KINETOSCOPE"

On Market Street Has Offended Some Sensitive or Spiteful Person.

An enterprising advertising agent some time ago erected a rather handsome device for exploiting the business of various merchants of the city, and placed it on Market street, against the building occupied by Mr. Charles R. Goetze, the druggist. It is not an unsightly affair at all, and to attract attention it contains some handsome views which can be seen through magnifying lenses. For some reason or other the structure has offended some person. Yesterday the board of public works was summoned by a man who put it up, and not finding him, they fell on the neck of Mr. Goetze and notified him to appear before police court this morning and state his reasons why the affair should not be deemed a nuisance. It is not known who complained to the board of public works. The matter has caused great indignation among the merchants who have advertising cards on the device.
